

Online check-in: What is it?

Online check-in is check-in made via the Internet. An alternative option is a check-in at the airport.

Attention! In the case of purchasing the tickets of popular airlines Ryanair, Wizz Air or easyJet, it's worth using online check-in because check-in at the airport is associated with additional fees.

What is check-in and why should it be made?

In order to take a seat on the plane, every passenger must have a boarding pass (the ticket alone does not entitle you to board the plane!) which is generated during check-in and handed over at the airline desk at the airport or made available for download or sent to the passenger's email. Sometimes, instead of boarding passes, airlines provide or send a check-in confirmation via email. In this case, remember to bring the confirmation with you to the airport, go to the airline desk and show it to the staff. Based on this, you will receive your boarding passes. The check-in confirmation alone, similarly to the ticket, does not entitle you to board the plane.

There are two ways to perform check-in:

- "Online - using a web form, enter the required data and, once the boarding pass or check-in confirmation has been generated by the airline, print it out or save it to a mobile device (e.g. smartphone, tablet) and take it with you to the airport
- At the airport – at the check-in desk of an airline or at the self-service check-in desk (machine) – in this case, the boarding pass is printed by the airline employee or by the machine (you can find more information in the article about check-in at the airport).

Each passenger has one boarding pass filled with data, the scope of data is determined by the airline. In addition, the required data may vary depending on the route, which is related to the visa requirement set by the country of arrival. Usually during check-in you must give your name and type, number and series of the transport document (ID card, passport), as well as additional data, such as country and data on the issue and validity of the document. This is important because the compliance of the data on the boarding pass and documents are verified during the security check.

In the case of non-compliance of the mentioned data, the passenger won't be able to pass the security check. Additionally, during the check-in, seats on the plane are allocated – this information is included in the generated boarding pass.

Is it necessary to provide data during check-in? Yes, it's necessary. When making the reservation of the airline ticket, you have to provide names and surnames of the passengers, birth dates and contact details. The boarding pass includes more detailed information. This results from the applicable safety requirements.

In addition, in the time between the ticket purchase and the flight, the required data may change (for example, the validity of the passport may expire and a new document will be issued with a different series and number). This is why check-in is made just before the departure or in the case of online check-in, it's possible only a few days before the departure.

Attention! Each passenger should have his/her own boarding pass filled with the required data and an identity document confirming their compatibility with the actual situation.

What is the difference between a check-in confirmation and a boarding pass?

If the airline, after completing the online check-in, provides or sends you a check-in confirmation, go to the airport with the document received. At the line stand, show your confirmation and based on it the staff will print and hand over your boarding passes. The confirmation alone may not contain detailed information about the flight and your seats, in the form of a code to be scanned before boarding the plane.

How do I know if the airline sent me a confirmation or a boarding pass? The shared or sent boarding pass file contains the following text: „Boarding pass”, whereas the check-in confirmation file: „Check-in confirmation”/„This is not a boarding pass”.

When do airlines launch the online check-in?

The moment of launching and closing online check-in is determined separately by each airline. For example:

- easyJet enables online check-in from 30 days to 2 hours before departure,
- Ryanair enables check-in from 24 to 2 hours before departure (from 60 days before departure in the case of seat reservations),
- Wizz Air enables online check-in from 30 days (if a seat has been reserved) or from 24 hours (if a seat has not been reserved) up to 3 hours before scheduled departure.

Other airlines that provide online check-in:

- Air Baltic - from 5 days before departure to closing personal check-in at the airport.
- Alitalia (applies only to the Light tariff!) - from 24 to 2 hours before departure.

Online check-in on the route Kiev - Riga and Riga - Kiev is payable, for other routes its free. Passengers on all UIA flights, with the exception of intercontinental flights and flights from Klaipeda, are required to pay an additional fee for check-in at the airport!
- AirAsia (with exception of flights from or to United States) - from 14 days to 4 hours before departure (for AirAsia X) or up to 1 hour before departure (AirAsia).
- Spirit Airlines - from 24 hours to 1 hour before departure.

- El Al. - from 24 hours to 3 hours before departure.

In cases not mentioned above, check-in takes place in a standard way at the airport - after going to the check-in desk (no later than 2 hours before departure), passengers will receive boarding cards free of charge.

Boarding cards or confirmation should be printed or saved on a mobile device (e.g. smartphone, tablet) before leaving for the airport. Attention! In this case, you can receive information about your booking directly from the airline to your email address. However, we recommend that you only follow the check-in messages sent by eSky.

Should you print out your boarding pass?

Print your boarding pass or save it to your mobile device (e.g. smartphone, tablet).

Remember to do this before you go to baggage claim, passport control or security! Bring the printed or saved card with you to the airport, along with the ID you used to check in. If you do not have the card, you will have to pay a hefty fine and, in extreme cases, you may even be denied boarding.

I can't check-in. What to do?

- Check if a new flight schedule and a new check-in link have been sent to your e-mail address.
- If the booking concerns a larger group, you shouldn't check-in more than several passengers at the same time. If there are too many passengers, when entering data from documents, the duration of the session may end. It's related to the security of your data.

Change after check-in

After checking in online, Ryanair, Wizz Air, and easyJet allow you to change your flight date or passenger name. This service is additionally payable per passenger per flight, according to the airline's price list. After opening the ticket, passengers may make changes in accordance with the airline's regulations and possible fees. There are restrictions on the time when such a change is possible.

Attention! Passengers travelling with checked baggage and using the online check-in service are still required to attend standard baggage check-in at the airport.

Remember!

- After the online check-in, changes to the ticket are no longer possible (except for Ryanair, Wizz Air, easyJet).
 - Always keep your boarding pass with you at the airport and on the plane ready to show - either as a printout or saved on your mobile device.
 - Boarding passes can be printed in black.
 - Each boarding card must be printed on a separate sheet so that one side of the card remains unprinted.
 - At the airport, passengers must have the same identity documents that were used when checking in online.
